Last year, Sara Greenwood exposed her arteries to the threat of extreme clogging when she ate one jelly doughnut for each candle lit on Hanukkah...

"People were yelling at me last year, saying why are you doing this to yourself, it's not good for you," the 25-year-old Jerusalemite said about her creative fundraising projects.

Greenwood, who studies neurobiology at Hebrew University, said the prospect of covering a total of 72 km didn't sound like too daunting a task...

"I usually run distances of up to 10.5 km, so I know that I can do this," Greenwood said. "Even the 16 km on the last day doesn't seem so crazy to me."

For more information or to join Greenwood on her runs through Jerusalem, email: sara.greenwood1@gmail.com.
